雪乙女

おおやちき

When the sky is at its most divine, snow maidens descend
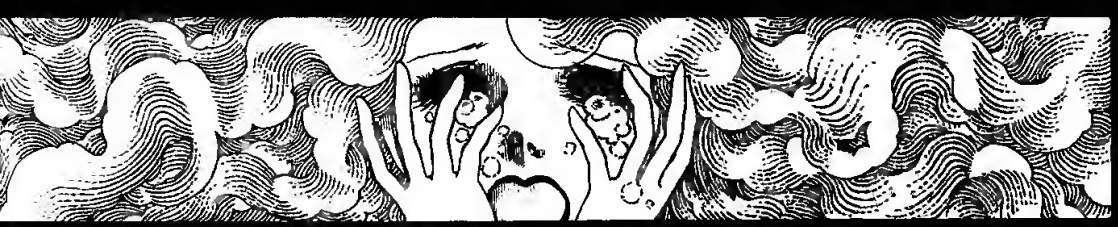
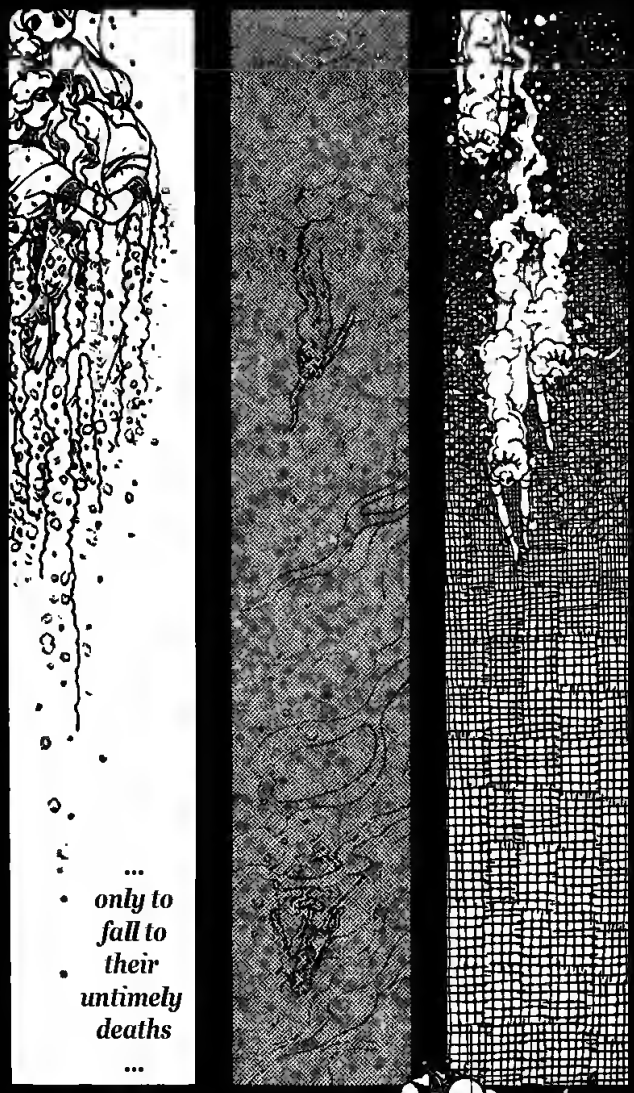
from the heavens.

Their gaze is ice,
their lips are blue,
and love,
frozen deep within their hearts,
falls down from the sky
as snowflakes.

Close your door
and cower behind it;
do not even
peek outside,

for all those who
meet their eyes die,
frozen, in the dance
of a pure white storm.





...
only to fall to their untimely
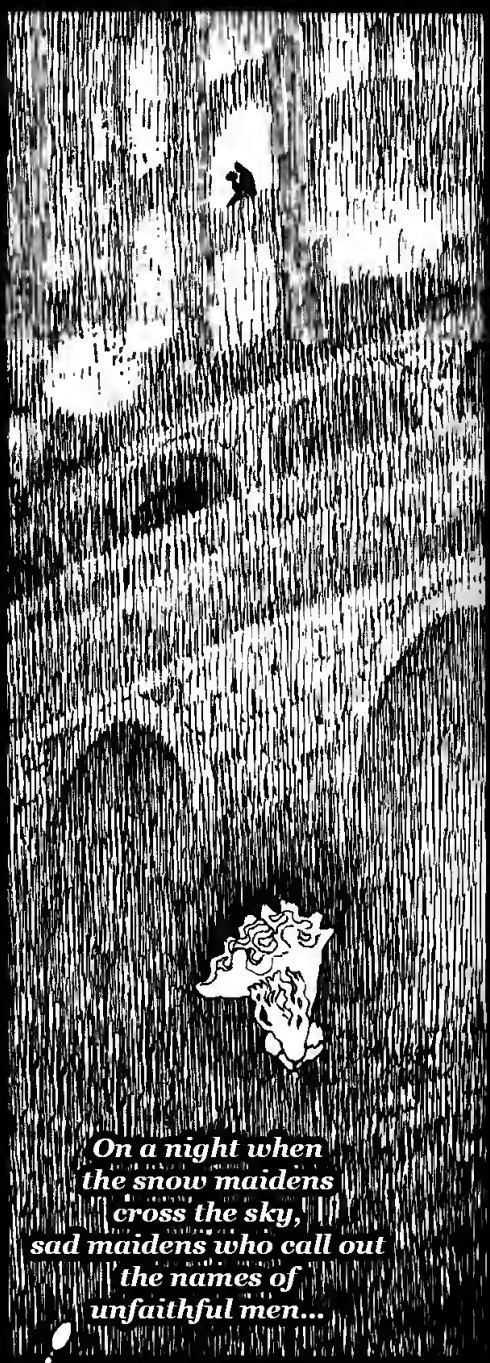
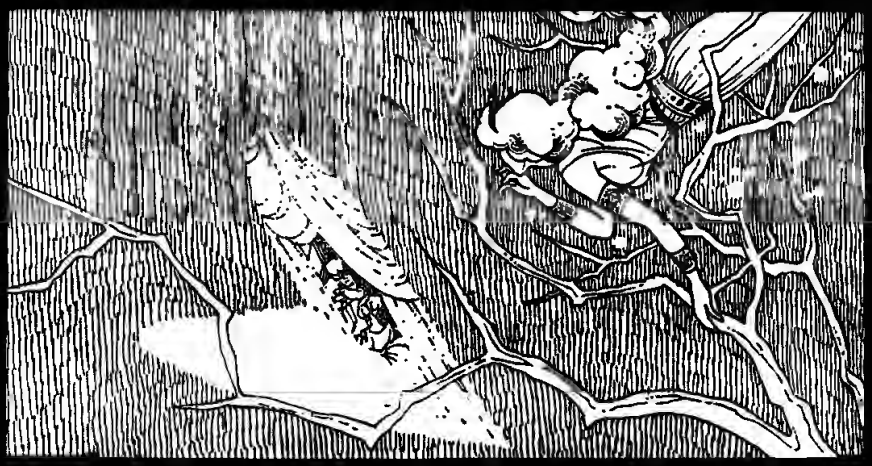
deaths
...



On a night when
the snow maidens
cross the sky,
sad maidens who call out
the names of
unfaithful men...

...all become
snow maidens.



When going past his happy home in a certain northern country yet again, she detests him even more than ever!

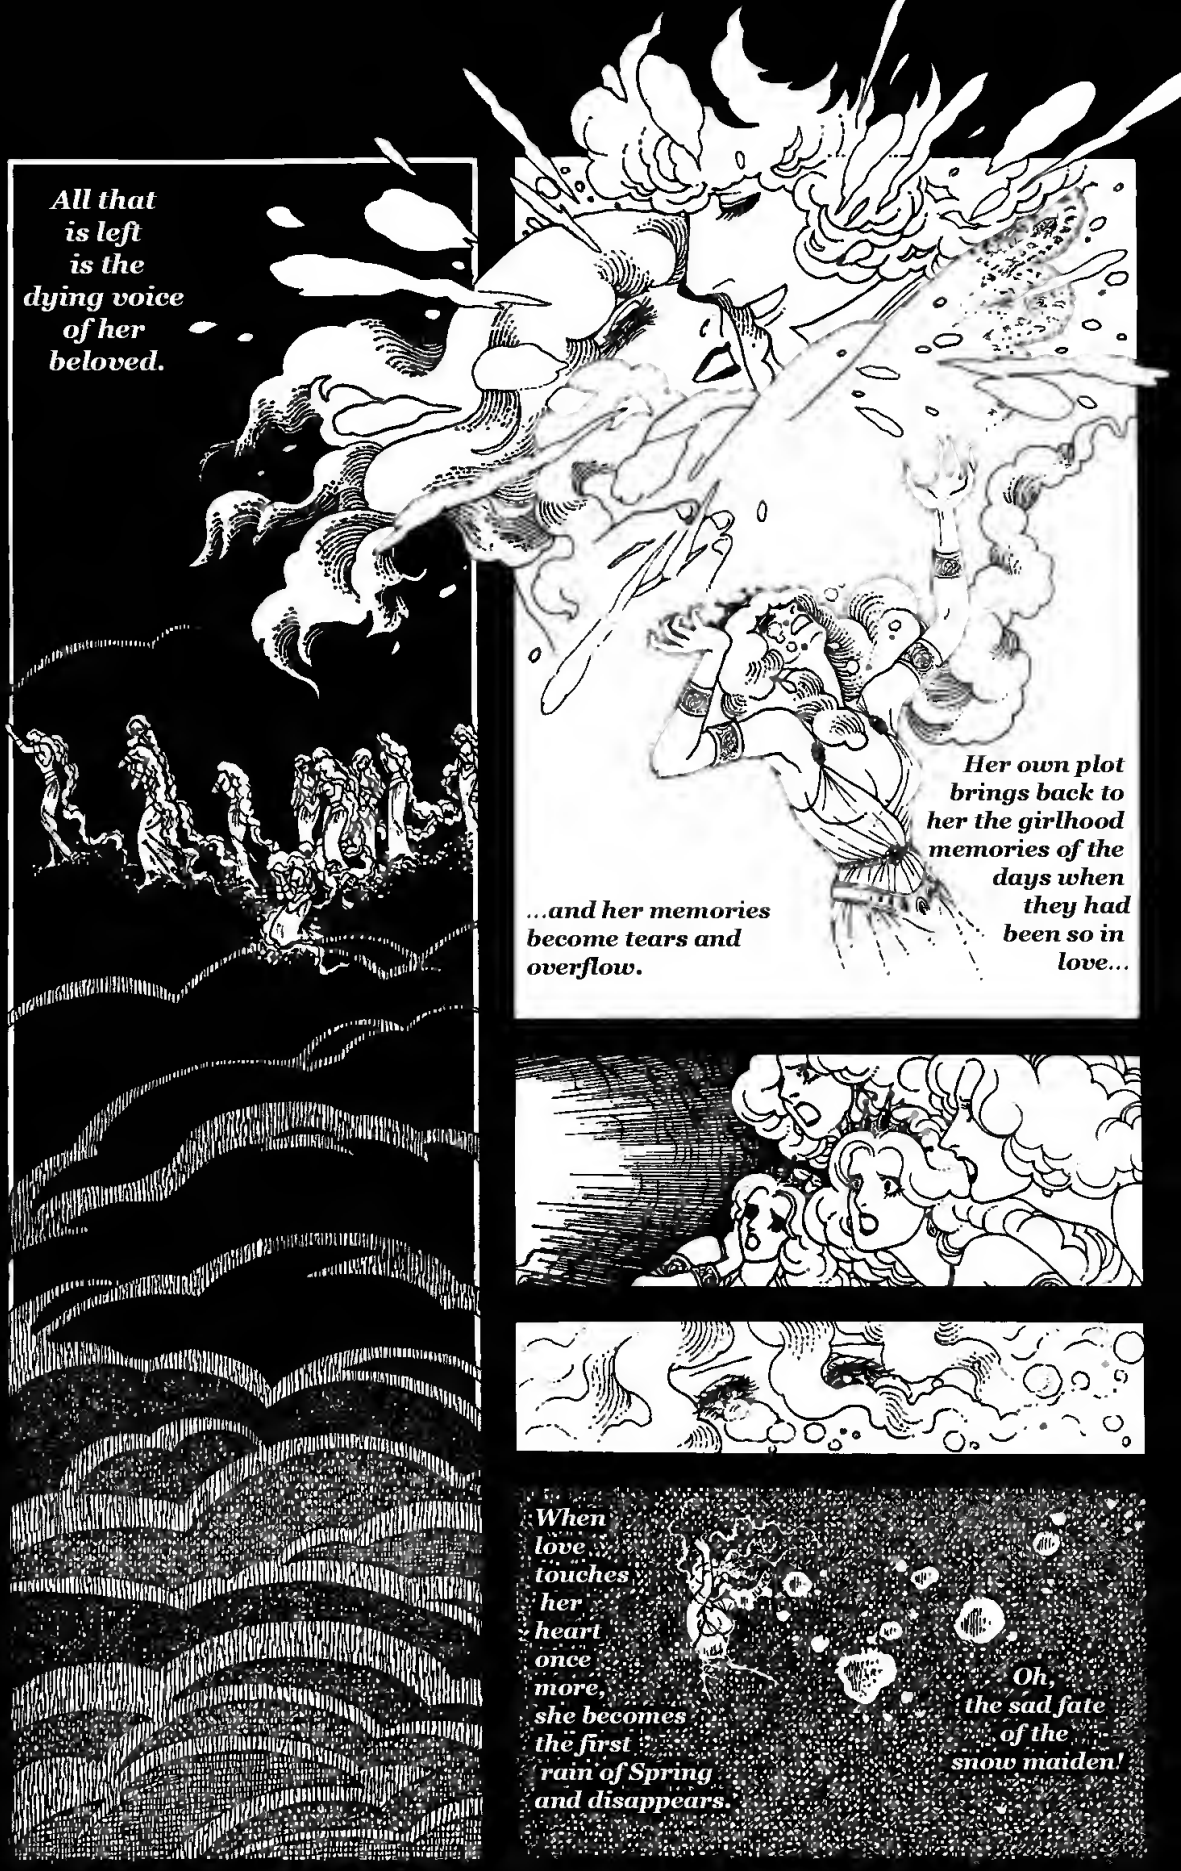
She sends him a bitter invitation into a snow storm.



All that is left is the dying voice of her beloved.
Her own plot brings back to her the girlhood memories of the days when they had been so in love...
...and her memories become tears and overflow.
When love touches her heart once more, she becomes the first rain of Spring and disappears.
Oh, the sad fate of the snow maiden!
